Frédéric Bougouin studied at the Conservatoire de Poitiers, winning prizes in improvisation and composition at the Rencontres Internationales de Harpes Celtiques de Dinan, and pursuing a richly varied early career from rock and chanson to electroacoustic music. In 1996, he founded L'Herbe d'Or with the storyteller François Godard. This has led him to compose for and perform with musicians, storytellers, actors, dancers, visual artists and technicians such as Belles d'Ouest, Mélodimaginaire, Merlin, Mamma Togni, Ceux qui sont en mer, L'homme d'argile, L'Aube attendra, Opéra Bleu, and many more.

Since 1995, Frédéric Bougouin has devoted himself entirely to performing, with more than 3000 appearances throughout Europe, solo and in bands. He is particularly fond of the electric harp and the metal-strung harp, which he combines with sound processing and effects. His musical outlook remains as open as ever, from Medieval repertoire with the singer Jean Paul Rigaud, to electric harp and DJ, traditional music with the group Keltiac, and world music with Le Triangle. He has been particularly developing his solo work since 2008, with "ElectricConcert"'s blend of compositions, tributes and covers.

In 2019, Frédéric Bougouin produced EllesSeules: a compilation of pieces using samples from all three of his 3 harps, and expressing almost fifty years of passion for his instruments.
